

A Brief Inquiry Into The Art Of Shadowing

To follow the other is to take charge of their itinerary,

It is to watch over their life
without knowing it,

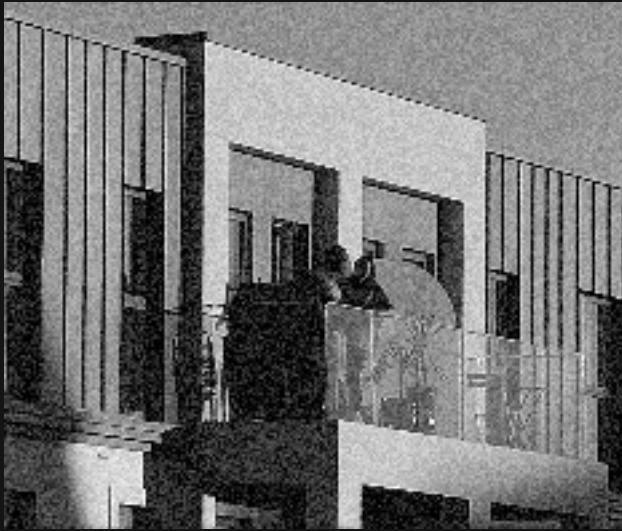

It is to relieve them of the existential burden;
the responsibility for their own life.

Simultaneously, those who follow are relieved of the responsibility for their own life,

Following blindly in the footsteps of the other.

A wonderful reciprocity exists in the cancellation
of each others
existence.

While shadowing the other,
one replaces them, exchanges lives, passions,
emotions and transforms into the other's stead.

And that is the beauty of following.

Text by Jean Baudrillard,
'Please Follow Me' (1988)

Photography, design and compilation by
Julia Laszniewska